How can I achieve this? I have tried adding a simple wait for the page to load and an alert after the window is opened, but it just opens it and shows the contents on the screen as well. This is a set of frames that needs to be loaded in a specific order. If any frame has a text box that is entered, the test should check if it matches an expected text, and continue (or fail) the test. The tested frames are: Login Dashboard Product Orders Transactions A: This answer assumes that you have an element on the page that will be used to identify where the page is focused. If the element you're using to identify the focus changes you'll have to adjust the following code. To solve your problem, we will need to be able to identify if the Text Window has focus. In the following example, we'll use the username, which is entered in the Text Window. We'll need to identify that it has focus to determine if the message has been entered. The following code will wait until the page has loaded, then wait for a page to have the focus on the username field.  Settings  Library
